

Who is to Blame for Defunding the Police?

This week the White House Press Secretary, Jen Psaki, attempted to project blame from the Democrats to Republicans by saying that it was actually the Republicans that are responsible for defunding the police.

During a press conference, Psaki indicated that a bill that was passed by the Democrats and rejected by the Republicans was partially intended to help fund local police departments. Ooppps, what Psaki didn't mention was that those cities in the process of defunding was actually promoted by the Democrat Cities council members. Psaki's reference to the legislation mentioned that "it could" have helped, however those cities defunding apparently made it clear that they want to redirect money away from policing and send it social services, thus any federal money that a city might receive would not be going to police.

Time and time again, there are videos of liberal Democrats making their intent to defund police very clear. There is no question what they want to do, defund police and put American's lives at risk. So many Democrat cities with homicide rates surging. In Portland, Oregon, the homicide rate was increased over last year by over 800%.

But wait, since the Dems are trying to blame Republicans for defunding the police, some may ask why? The answer is 2022 and 2024. The majority of Americans know who to blame for defunding the police, and now the Dems are realizing that it isn't good for the party. So what is their answer? Blame the Republicans. The elections are just around the corner.

This is projection, and Americans need to stay vigil and know that Democrats are not interested in the safety of our cities. DEFEND the Police, NOT defund.
